

NAHMA 2015 Calendar Art Contest

Posted: July 10 15

For the second year in a row, the Housing Authority of Yamhill County invited senior citizens from our community to participate in the 29th Annual National Affordable Housing Management Association Calendar Art Contest with the theme

“Our Hands are United – Reach Out and Be a Good Neighbor”

NAHMA works as an advocate for professional standards for affordable housing providers. Each year, the underlying message for this contest carries a drug-free theme, but they also want to open the door for more avenues of expression. Art projects are submitted from around the country and judged first at the state level and then may proceed to the national level...where winners are selected for originality, content, and craftsmanship. The winning entries from this contest will appear in the 2016 NAHMA Calendar.

Our local art workshops provide an important opportunity for our senior population to communicate in a creative format, perhaps learn some new skills, and also have a little fun. The HAYC art workshops were organized by Bruce Sahagian and conducted by Sundee Buchanan, Angela Flores, and Yanira Vera.
